THE "FLU."

Nature is like a balky horse. You can never tell what she will do next. Just when she has settled down into the traces and is acting like a four-hoofed angel, she takes an ornery streak, rares, kicks over the dash board and smashes the things generally. It is thus with Mom Nature. She's the contrariest thing. Life may be running along like a song, the skies are blue, the brooks bubble and all that sort of thing when Mother Nature takes it into her head to heave a stone into the pool of human happiness. Moreover she does it without any hesitation.

The last rock which has disturbed the even calm of our lives is labeled variously: "Spanish Influenza," "Influenza," "Flue", "Flu," "Lagrippe," "Grippe," or * * - !!! *!, depending on the feelings of the individual. This is the second time this joy destroyer has visited us and we sincerely hope it will be the last, because if it comes many more times there won't be anybody left to enjoy it. Spanish Influenza is a cross between the hog cholera, the black plague, and the ex-Kaiser's disposition and it makes life as pleasant as living with one's mother-in-law.

There are various symptoms which tell a person that he or she is a victim of the "flu." If you have a headache, gout, dizziness, snow-blindness, backache, ingrowing toenails, dyspepsia, or an ornery disposition, go to bed and call the undertaker. There are a few general symptoms, there are five hundred and three others, so the modern M. D.'s tell us.

Still no cloud is without its silver lining, though it may be a trifle frayed. Thus it is with the "flu." For instance you don't have to leave your warm and cozy bed when the alarm clock tolls six times in the grey morning. You don't have to toe the rail at a catch as catch can hash dispensary, but you lie luxuriously back among the pillows and wait for the pretty nurse to bring you your poached egg and toast (provided you're not too near dead to eat it.) However, I'm not defending the "flu." I've had it and lived to tell about it. Summing it all up, I say this: if there's anyone against whom anger rankles in your heart, just send him a half-pound box of "flu" wrapped in crepe paper, and tied with blue baby ribbon.

—Howard Krimmel.

BLACK RUFUS.

The story of Black Rufus is based upon an historical fact. The name of Black Rufus' master was Lambert, of Altoona, Ga. The battle referred to is the battle of Altoona Pass, one of the unsuccessful attempts made by the Confederates to stop Sherman's triumphal march to the sea.

Tell you a story, sonny?
Well now that's hard to do
I'm not used to telling stories
To little lads like you.

About old war times in Dixie,
When I was just a lad?
Ah, there were heart stirring days then,
And things were pretty bad.

'Twas long way back in the spring time
When the green comes back to the trees;
And the mocking bird was singing;
And softly blew the breeze.

My daddy called out Black Rufus
And then he said to him,
"I must go to the field of glory;
My family—take care of them."

Then he mounted and rode away quickly,
Straight to the south over fields
That were green as a shining emerald,
With a wealth of promised yields.

Well things went on 'bout the same, then
Till one morning ere rose the sun,
From the west came an ominous rumble,
The rattle and roar of the guns.

O, but that day was a horror,
For ere two hours had passed,
The rumble of the guns grew nearer
Like the roar of the thunder blast.

Wounded began to come shortly,
Torn, mangled with bullet and shell.
Our house was soon full of the stricken
The dying and dead as well.

Black Rufus all day had been restless
As the roar of the strife kept on,
And toward evening he mounted Vixen
And toward the battlefield was gone.

There was no time to think of Black Rufus,
There was work for us all to do;
Mother's face was careworn and anxious
And often the curtain aside she drew.

And looked out on a world of darkness
To the west where glowed the light,
Of the numberless camp fires burning
Where the armies were resting that night.

Hark! was that the resounding hoof-beats
Of a horse on the hard graveled lane?
Mother's lips moved in silent prayer,
As she drew back the curtain again.

The horse stopped with a jerk at the yard gate.
Mother went quick to the door
Black Rufus stumbled over the threshold
And bleeding, sank to the floor.

We all bent tenderly o'er him
And his lips they feebly tried
To shape some message of gladness,
But could not; there he died.

Tom went out to care for Vixen.
There securely tied on her back,
Was my father, wounded and fainting,
Brought home by the faithful black.

From the field of blood and fire
To the home he loved the best.
But the faithful hand which found him
Had gone to eternal rest.

My father and mother have passed away,
And the family is scattered wide.
Yet we treasure Black Rufus' story
How for love of us he died.

—Howard Krimmell.

LOVE'S VISION.

When night's dark shadows had fallen—no sound save the whip-poor-will,
Diana with sparkling attendants was hunting 'mong snowy hills;
Two lovers had long stood in silence; on the morrow they were to wed.
Very gently he kissed his fair sweetheart, and in parting he softly said:

Through life we'll journey together, and each for the other do;
And hardships we'll suffer in common; in joy we'll be partners too;
With all God's creatures deal kindly, forever ministering aid;
And teach the ones that have fallen divine law must be obeyed.

When life's great task is completed, when prepared for the golden stairs,
God's messenger, Death, shall enfold us—abstract us from earthly cares;
And in that great hall we'll assemble before the Almighty's throne;
He'll praise us and bless us for leaving some monument other than stone.

—J. P. Sparks.

The following story, "A Just Reward," is the work of one of the academy students of the second year. The Tech is glad to print it, and hopes that other contributions to the Literary Department will be received from academy students.
—Editor's Note.

A JUST REWARD.

The man walked hurriedly down a lighted street of one of the best residence districts of the town. In the uncertain light of the street, he was tall and of a neatly dressed appearance, but under the bright light of the corner lamp, it could be seen that his clothes were threadbare and showed much usage. He carried a small black satchel and as he brushed past, the few pedestrians of this hour of the evening stared at him curiously. He approached a small park and seeing a bench hastily sat down upon it, placing the satchel gingerly beside him. After glancing around and seeing that the park was deserted, he opened his satchel and carefully lifted out a neatly wrapped box which contained an infernal machine set to explode in one hour.

The man was an anarchist with a fanatical idea that if he blew up the state capitol he would be harming the government of this country which he hated, and avenging himself. But fear or repentance had seized him since he had set out upon this mission, and not understanding infernal machines, he did not know what to do. He wished to get rid of the machine as quickly as possible, but the fear of being detected drove him on until he had reached this park. He looked at his watch and perceived that a half hour's time must elapse before the bomb would explode. But suddenly his bitter hatred surged over him again. Ah, he must and would destroy something! These happy and carefree Americans, he would make them take notice. Alas, it was too late to perform his original idea. He placed the package back in the satchel and stood up. Suddenly a cunning thought crept into his mind. Across the street from the park and gleaming white in the dusk was the governor's home. The spacious lawn of the mansion was lit up by Japanese lanterns, and a gay air of festivity seemed to prevail. It was the seventeenth birthday of the governor's daughter, and she had been allowed to give a small party. The guests had all arrived and were amusing themselves in front of the house on the lawn. To one side could be seen some of the tables set together for a dainty repast.

The man had crept closer to the house and placed himself with his satchel behind the hedge, but close enough to hear and see what was going on. He wished to place his machine where the most destruction would be wrought by it. The girl was calling her guests to be seated at the table for refreshments, and here was his chance. If he could quickly place his box under the table, it would go off before the guests had finished eating. There were two servants standing at the opposite end of the table, and it would be but the work of a minute to slide through the hedge, and push his box under the table and then leave undetected to await nearby until he knew his evil plan had worked. So hastily he slid through the hedge and slipped his box under the table. The guests were already filing toward the table, and he was just turning around after ridding himself of the satchel when a hand grabbed him by the shoulder and a voice called, "Here, what are you doing?"

He wheeled about abruptly to face a young man.

"Nothing. Let me go." But the young man only tightened his grasp. The anarchist was thinking quickly.

"What time is it?" he asked nervously.

"Why, tell him, somebody!" said the man good-humoredly. He was told, and the sweat broke out upon his brow. Only three more minutes! Abject terror seized him. He must get away from that infernal machine. He jerked quickly away from the young fellow and started to run. The man followed him and so did the others. He darted through the hedge, closely followed by his pursuers. But he saw that because most of them were following him, his plan must fail. He was getting ahead of his pursuers when suddenly without apparent reason, he turned and ran back to the table when—his plan would work. He reached the table and looked back at his pursuers; but they had stopped and were helping to lift a girl who had stumbled and twisted her ankle. He shouted at them to attract their attention toward the table, but just as he shouted, and before anyone could approach, the infernal machine had exploded! After the smoke had cleared away and the confusion had subsided, everyone looked eagerly to the place where the table had been, but both table and man had completely disappeared, and the only traces found were a few wood splinters scattered along the ground.

REPORTERS

Every Student of Bradley Institute.

A REHASH OF THE CAFETERIA. On account of the excitement arising over the editorial on the Bradley cafeteria, published in the February number of THE TECH, it is our duty to explain the circumstances and occasion of the article and the grounds for undertaking the movement.

On February 5, the editorial was written, in answer to numerous requests by members of the student body that THE TECH, the official organ of student expression, accept the task of enlightening the officials of Bradley Institute as to the general feeling prevalent among the students. Consequently, an examination of the food served on February 5, the condition of the cafeteria and the service given, was made and the article was based on the result of the examination. No attempt was made to be comical, no personal malice was allowed to enter the article, but the exact portrayal of true conditions was made.

This article was written on March 5, and by the time the March edition of THE TECH reaches the readers, the incident will probably be closed, but with a true sense of justice, we feel that it is our duty to explain the origin of the article and leave the verdict on its fairness to the students in general.

Up to the time of the trouble, we were somewhat pleased with the result of editorials published in THE TECH. An editorial advocating a student band was published and served as a factor in bringing about the formation of a good band. Several editorials advocating better student spirit had the desired effect of bringing out the largest attendance to Bradley in basketball games in years. An editorial endorsing boxing at Bradley was satisfactorily received by all readers in the conference as evinced by notes in the exchange columns of several Little Nineteen magazines and was published in an editorial of a local newspaper. However, one editorial advocating an improvement in an institution at our school of mutual interest to the faculty and students was received in very poor grace, despite the fact that criticism for improvement of the school was requested by members of the faculty in class work and in general meetings.

In the October edition of THE TECH, an editorial defining the policy of the magazine for the year 1919-1920 was published in which was emphatically pointed out that THE TECH would be an organ of criticism of students and faculty alike. An attempt to follow out a policy which in general is followed by all standard magazines and papers of the world in countries where free speech is permitted, resulted in an unpleasant termination. It is certainly anything except inspiring to the editor who has striven all year to forward the better ideals of students to have action taken in a divisional meeting by the faculty, who paused not a second to fathom out the truth in the article, but immediately orated hearty condemnation of every statement in the editorial. The entire action would only serve to bring out the truth of one famous proverb which is known to all Bradleyites, that "The Truth Hurts."

It is time that biased opinion were allowed to recede in favor of the greater spirit of truth. Bradley will be given a stronger push on the road to perfection if a better spirit of co-operation and reciprocity is established between students and the faculty.

Edited by J. M. Kelly.

Coach Brown has left us. The Horologs, although never closely in touch with him as were some others, feel his loss just as great. Mr. Brown needs no praise, for words of praise are too inadequate to express true appreciation.

His past record stands as a monument to his ability and the thought that the innumerable amount of friends he leaves behind will remember him as a red-blooded fighting coach with a heart as big as all outdoors, will compensate him far more than mere words of praise. We will follow with personal interest the fortunes of his Brazilian team in the coming Olympic games at Antwerp and we feel sure that should they show the ability as a team that he does as a coach they will land the highest honor of any foreign team, and that would be to finish second to our American winners. The Horolog toast to our coach is: That in his climb up the ladder of success may he never meet a friend coming down.

Among the former Horologs who favored us with a visit during the past month were Roy Anderson, of Indiana, Tub Overstreet, of Paxton, Ill.; Horace Nees, of Charleston, Ill., and Clarence Slaybaugh, of Taylorville, Ill. All seemed to be very contented and prosperous. They met many old friends to whom they imparted the wonders of the business world. Slaybaugh intends to enter Ohio State University next fall to complete his optical studies begun at Bradley.

"Dutch" Clarno seems to be the hard luck king, they trim him in black jack, they trim him at billiards and they smash up his countenance in basketball so that the doctors have to straighten him up and as one of his friends remarked recently, "To add to all his troubles the poor boy is in love."

Yea, verily, we have nothing but sorrow. We are now in mourning for Rossman. Cupid shot him in February—I mean in the heart, and he has taken unto himself a life-time contract with a lady in charge.

Feminine remarks overheard after Hainline made his pep talk in chapel: "Isn't he a dear, his poise is perfect." (What's that?) "The way he held his hand on his hip made him so distinguished looking." He reminds me of some one I know—oh yes, Francix X Bushman."

Our old friend Ed. Hornick has made ambitious Horologs a generous offer. He is located at 1027 South Adams and is willing for any of the students who wish to spend their off time in bettering themselves in the trade to do so in his establishment.

Vollmer took a mysterious hunting trip last month but returned without any game. He says wait until it arrives.

Bacon—"My Rose," as he pressed her velvet cheek to his.
"My Cactus" she replied as she encountered his stubble.

At Murphy's.

The Horolog stood on the ball room floor.
His feet were in his shoes;
A blush crept o'er his handsome face
For a garter is tough to lose.

If it takes one hundred and fourteen hours for one seeded raisin to put one and a half per cent kick in a bottle of Bevo, how long is a main spring if Shorty Cobb runs around Fletcher's bench so fast that it takes three Horologs five days to read Grant Hood twice.

Sprig has cub—yes spring.

C room in Horology Hall is taxed to its capacity and until recently the school was forced to put a limit on the number of new enrollments for watch work. The facilities for handling more students in this branch are being installed as rapidly as possible. Material has not only increased by leaps and bounds but the demand has far outstripped the supply.

Teed—"Why weren't you here yesterday?"
Young Smith—" 'Cause I was absent."
Teed—"Why were you tardy this morning?"
Smith—"School must have started before I got here."
Teed—" 'Snough, take your seat."
Smith—"Where to?"

The Officers of the Young Women's Christian Association are being painted and put in condition for spring.—Daily Error.

Fred—"May I go home with you after the game?"
Sweet Damsel—"Are you afraid to go home alone?"

Mr. Westlake's new lady stenographer in making out last month's statements for material received, had several fellows charged with "speeding." We are investigating.

Rhynsburger—"Campbell, can you go seven days without a drink?"
Campbell—"Yes, can you go that long without bumming a cigarette?"

The Psi Deltas gave a farewell dinner, smoker and theatre party on the twenty-fifth of February in honor of Nelson O. Jacobs, who left for San Antonio, Texas, to enter the jewelry business with his brother.

Gerald Allen was pledged to Alpha Pi on March 5, 1920.

To celebrate the birthday of the Griesser twins on February eleventh, a large group of their friends surprised them, bringing with them as remembrances such useful presents as jumping ropes, balloons, white rat, paper dolls, etc. A hot chilli supper was served later in the evening. Those present were: Gretchen Hulsebus, Lennorie Norton, Edna Wieting, Edith Dorsey, Marjorie Paul, Ahna Wieting, Doris Griesser, Dorothy Griesser, Howard Kelly, Dick Iben, George Catlin, Bus Ireland, Ralph Johnson, Bob Humber, Laughton Paul, Russel Fisher.

The annual banquet of the Beta Sigma Mu fraternity was held on February the seventh, at the Creve Coeur Club, in honor of their faculty advisor, Dr. Swaim. The tables of four were artistically decorated in gold and black. Speeches and toasts were given by Dr. Swaim, Ervine Meyer, Milo Shephardson, Dwight Ernest and Paul Tirmenstein. Those who attended the banquet were: Dr. Swaim, Ervine Meyer, Al Lacour, Claude Davison, Winfield Peterson, Dwight Ernest, Coleman Milton, Paul Tirmenstein, Al Bilbrough, Glenn Glasgow, Patrick Cusack, George Stuber, William Roeder, Frank Jibbens, James Cusack, David Kendall, Howell Snyder, Fred Dammann, Rudolph Gerdes, August Stein, Walter Ryan, Milo Shephardson, Gilbert Schweicher, Dr. Earl Ryan, and Harold Jones.

The regular monthly dinner of the Beta Sigma Mu fraternity was given at the Cafeteria, on Monday, February the sixteenth. Following the dinner, the party adjourned to the Orpheum Theatre.

A surprise was given the members of the Beta Sigma Mu fraternity on Sunday, February twenty-second, when Dwight Ernest announced his twentieth birthday. Following the announcement, a magnificent cake was cut and served with ice cream. After the refreshments were served a pleasant afternoon was spent at Dwight's home.

AN ESSAY ON SPRING.

Yes, Spring is just about with us now. It has made divers hints of its approach—bareheaded students, rainy weather, et cetera. You of Bradley who have lived close to the soil, if we may be pardoned the expression, know that the coming of this season of the year brings with it the awakening of the green things of nature. It is a time to take off one's coat, grab the old spade, and prepare the dirt for another period of production.

Well, now, the Manual Arts Building underwent a complete brightening up last fall, and many new improvements were added. Why not get ready to set the buildings off by a proper background? Let's tear down that unused stairway at the end of the south building, level up the driveways a bit, and scatter a few pounds of grass seed where it is needed. Then to top off the job in good style, re-establish the flower beds that were in prominence in past years. At that there weren't very many, so we might even go ourselves one better and lay out some new designs. We could easily make the place where we work the most beautiful spot in this beautiful section of the city.

Why not?

PROPOSED EXHIBIT ROOM.

A plan is now being considered whereby the old carving room opposite the Manual Arts office may be turned into an exhibit room. Mr. Hurff has offered to remodel the room, putting in a new floor, a paneled ceiling and paneled walls, with his carpentry class of next quarter.

That sort of thing would indeed fill a long felt need in this department. When any project is made in the shops, there is no place to keep it and as a consequence the students have to take them home. Then in the spring on open night there is very little to represent some of the shops. The best articles are gone and only the poorest are left for exhibit. Such work is not a fair example of the work which may be turned out and doesn't advertise the school very much. When anyone comes into the school to visit or look around, there is nothing but unfinished work to impress him with the ability of the Bradley students and instructors.

At the present time six victrolas have been made or are under way and those which are not completed are not very liable to be left in a dusty,

The tractor work is closed in the tractor building but eight of the men are still here in forging and auto mechanics for the month of March.

The night school work has expanded until nineteen classes are offered during the four nights a week. Some of the classes are full and a waiting list has been filed. Some classes have advanced sections and elementary sections. This ought to benefit the individual student.

Some work has already been done on the summer session and quite a variety of shop work and drawing will be offered. This gives the opportunity for those lacking in credits for graduation to make them up and also for those who desire to shorten up their time.

The foundry class has visited several foundries during the quarter. Among them are the Hart Grain Weigher Co., Peoria Malleable Castings Co., and the Peoria Brass Foundry.

JOINT CONVENTION IN CHICAGO.

The joint meeting of the National Society for Vocational Education and the Vocational Association of the Middle West was held on February 19, 20 and 21. The main topics were as follows: Vocational Education and the Present Economic Unrest, Vocational Education in Conjunction with Military Service, Full and Part-Time Vocational Education in Secondary schools, and Future Problems of State and National Administration of Vocational Education.

The first of these were discussed and possible solutions presented by representatives of the public and the consumer, the employee, the employer and the educator. The second topic was discussed by several men, among whom was Col. R. I. Reese, Chief Education and Recreation Branch, War Department.

In connection with this convention, the Bradley people had a banquet at King's Restaurant on Monroe Street. The following list of people were present: Herbert A. Kellar, Adelina De Lent, Mrs. U. R. Sewrey, Mr. U. R. Sewrey, Helen Donathen, Wm. T. Bawden, Eleanor Coen, F. G. Elwood, Mrs. Edith Love Elwood, Oliver W. Fischer, O. M. Merriman, C. B. Price, Ora E. Neill, Ursula Dillon, C. A. SUMMER SESSION ANNOUNCEMENT.

Some work has already been done on the program for the summer session which will open June 21st and close July 23rd. The courses offered will be nearly the same as those offered during the regular school year in both the manual arts and the domestic science.

The teachers for this session will be in part from the regular faculty of the Institute and some others will be added.

More detailed particulars will appear in a later issue.

For several months there has been a Prony Brake installed in the Bradley garage. This testing machine was installed some time ago, and has been used to test various appliances for gas engines. Its particular value lies in its ability to accurately measure the efficiency of any engine with regard to fuel consumption. It was this machine that was recently used to thoroughly test the Thurston Vaporizer and to accurately form an opinion as to the merits of the device.

Brake Test to Determine Horse Power.

It is also possible to measure the horse power of engines and to determine the most economical speeds at which they should be run. During the past quarter the students interested in this work have been present and have assisted in conducting a number of the trials.

The entire machine is an achievement of the Bradley shops. The pattern for the brake wheel was made in one of the pattern-making classes, all of the machinery of the metal parts was done in Mr. Raymond's classes, and the framework itself of local design and construction. The brake wheel is provided with a removable flange union so that it is possible to substitute other unions of different bores to accomodate engines of different sized shafts.

dirty shop after completion. The shop in which they are being made looks like a victrola factory. The students pay about twenty-five dollars for the motor and reproducer and when the machine is finished, is worth from one hundred twenty-five to two hundred dollars. The tones of these machines are not excelled by any of the highest priced machines on the market.

A set of parlor chairs has been made and sent into another shop for finish and upholstery. Some of these are to be delivered to the girls' dormitory before the end of the quarter and the others will be available for the exhibit room in case the plan is carried out.

CHESS AND CHECKER CLUB.

March 1st a group of Bradley students met in the evening at the Y. M. C. A. for the purpose of organizing a chess and checker club. Those who had not played the game before took their first lesson. Several games were played during the evening.

A committee on rules and by-laws was appointed to formulate these and report at the meeting which will be held on Monday evening, March 8th, in the Club Room of the Bradley Gymnasium, at 8 o'clock.

The aim and purpose of the club is to make a permanent organization and to learn to play the games with the hopes of some inter-class, inter-group or possibly inter-collegiate tournaments.

THE LIGHTER SIDE.

Who says that garage work is monotonous? That person could not have known of the Bradley system very thoroughly. For instance, a projector has been installed in the lecture room of the Tractor Building and already two or three sets of slides have been shown by manufacturing concerns. Perhaps the best of these was the one given by the International Harvester Co., in which was shown many scenes in which tractors played a leading part. Their operation was made clear in all the different possible conditions of farm work that could arise.

Then on another occasion, the students put in a half day each at the Holt and Avery companies. Such excursions serve a good purpose—they break the monotony of the regular school life, show the future possibilities in the work, and also give an idea of actual manufacturing conditions.

THE POPULARITY OF NIGHT SCHOOL CLASSES.

The K. of C. and the Y. M. C. A. have devoted a portion of their funds to giving advanced training to ex-service men. In following out this plan, they are paying the tuition of great numbers of men, for varying lengths of time.

Bradley has received its full share of these men, and has found it necessary to restrict the registration. Perhaps the most popular class is that in the study of the automobile. At present there are over one hundred fifty enrolled in this course, and Mr. Hewitt has found it necessary to separate the class into two divisions in order to carry on the instruction.

SHAKESPEARE, A LA MODE.

"To be or not to be, that is the question"—that is claiming the attention of many of the students in Descriptive Geometry. And the question deals chiefly with whether the student will pass the test in Plane Descript, and be allowed to enter the more advanced work in Solid Descriptive Geometry; or whether he will be required to again go over the first quarter's work. Verily, much speculation is indulged in relative to the outcome of the final judgment day.

"Mechanical Engineer" Wharry has successfully led his class of cub draftsmen through the intricacies of spur gearing. The work during the next month or so will deal with bevel, worm, and spiral gearing, in the order named.

FREEHAND DRAWING.

The classes in freehand drawing are now divided into four groups: furniture drawing, pencil sketching from still life objects, water colors of still life objects, and charcoals from casts. Occasionally some work is done on posters.

Besides the regular work, some time is always found for a gum chewing contest or a new record trial on a so-called phonograph, or a discussion about which girl Anderson was out with the night before. This, with a little milk gargling or the imitation of some wild animals not yet known to exist, or perhaps the sitting on an occasional thumb tack or two produces a rare artistic atmosphere, the influence of which is readily noticeable.

It was a sad mistake that Miss Brinton made at the Bradley banquet in Chicago when she decided to liven the talk up a bit for "poor Mr. Nelson." Nelson's calm—almost sad—face rather belied his real sarcastic possibilities and so his rejoinders were rather disconcerting, to say the least.

A RECENT PUBLICATION.

Those students who were at Bradley last year or earlier know how one of our old instructors and friend is missed. Those who were personally acquainted with Mr. F. G. Elwood indeed miss him this year. It will be of interest to know that he is now Head of the Architectural and Mechanical Drawing in the Vocational School at Moosehart, Illinois.

During the last year of his work with Bradley he was getting together some material for a text book on Architectural Drawing and after he decided to accept the position at Moosehart, he put a part of the work into print at once. This material was printed by the Manual Arts Press and is now on the market under the title of "ARCHITECTURAL DRAWING PLATES."

There are fifteen plates in all and they run through the symbols and conventions and details of construction such as are found in the sills, cornices, windows and doors. Some of the others include roofs, dormer details, stairs, porch details, plan studies and elevations. All of these plates are well worked out and show some of the style of work that Mr. Elwood taught while he was at Bradley Institute.

NOTES.

The Automobile course which is offered in the day school is full to its capacity and students have been turned away. This is also true for the day school machine shop class.

THE HOME ECONOMICS CLUB.

The Home Economics Club held their second meeting of the quarter in the Social Hall, Wednesday evening, March tenth. The roll-call was answered with a current topic concerning different phases of Home Economics work which proved to be very interesting. Miss Mickle, who had consented to give the talk of the evening was unable to be present owing to a serious accident which she met with on March fourth, when she fell, sustaining a fracture of her left arm. Her subject was to have been, "Styles of Hair Dressing and Colors Suitable to Different Individuals." We hope Miss Mickle will be able to be with us at our next meeting and give us her paper at that time. Following the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed.

THE CAFETERIA.

Miss Sarah Potter, manager of the cafeteria and Laura Cottage, was called to New Mexico on February twenty-sixth, owing to the illness of her sister. During her absence Miss Leota Taylor has charge of the lunch room and Miss Mildred Carley of the dormitory. Miss Quinn temporarily has charge of the girls at the dormitory.

THE VALENTINE PARTY.

Just as we knew it would be—the Valentine Party which the H. E. girls gave the Federal Board men was a huge success. The refreshments were particularly dainty and appetizing. Miss Leota Taylor was chairman of the committee.

CONVENTION.

Miss Elizabeth Campbell and Miss Grace Brinton represented our department at the Chicago convention for Home Economics teachers, February twentieth and twenty-first. Miss Brinton went on to Cleveland, where she attended the annual meeting of the National Educational Association, February twenty-second to twenty-fourth. Miss Brinton gave to her classes many of the very good points brought out at the lectures which she heard.

PRACTICE HOUSEWORK.

The Senior girls began their practice housework the week of March eighth. The Misses Anderson, Bowman and Kinnahan were the first victims. All the girls are looking forward to a good time as well as profiting by the practical experience.

SICKNESS.

The Home Economics Department has been hard struck by sickness during the past month, many girls being out for short periods. Our instructor, Miss Gladys Miner, had a particularly severe attack of "flu" but we are happy to say that she is once more back at her post and quite like herself again.

H. C. L. DON'TS.

Miss Edith Strauss, in charge of the women's activities in the high cost of living campaign of the Department of Justice, has formulated a set of Do's and Dont's which she wishes every woman to study, and in so far as each can, to adopt the individual share of reducing expenses. Here are some of the Do's:

Put aside part of your income for future use.

Make every penny buy a penny's worth of something really needed.

Invest wisely.

Use what money buys with care.

Do figure out what each item of the family expenditures require: rent, food, heat, lighting, clothing, school, charity, doctor, pleasure, etc.

Pay as you buy.

Pay your bills monthly.

Set your own standards.

Buy only what you have the money to pay for.

Put aside for a rainy day.

And the Dont's—The Don'ts are:

Spend every dollar as it is earned.

Buy useless things of no value.

Speculate.

Be wasteful and destructive.

Do guesswork and trust to luck to make both ends meet.

Open numerous charge accounts.

Let worry go hand in hand with unpaid bills.

Ape the extravagance of others.

Run into debt.

Live beyond your means.

Somewhat in a like vein is the attempt to lower current market prices, by the Women's Fair Price Commission for Illinois, who have adopted a slogan easily remembered, and which should make a reform impression on profiteers. Here it is:

To market, to market

To buy a fresh pig,

Home again, home again—

Prices too big.

Recently a notice appeared in the local paper of Clifton, Texas, concerning a fine display at the Clifton Mercantile Co. of the Home Economics class of Lutheran College. The success of the display was due in great part to the work of Miss Lauve and her assistants, Ella Lund, Alice Peterson and Hanna Hoff. Miss Lauve is a graduate of '17.

On January 9th there arrived in a Chicago hospital, a son to Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe A. Page. The young gentleman's name is Theodore Sandford Page, and is the first grandson of Dr. Burgess. Mrs. Page is a graduate of 1912, and is living in Zeeland, Mich.

A little daughter arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin S. Beecher, in Madison, Wis., on February 2d. Mr. Beecher was a member of the class of 1908, and a Captain in the late war. The little lady's mother saw service in France as a Red Cross nurse.

Robert Woellner, '15, has recently taken charge of the Directorship of the Vocational College at Camp Pike, Little Rock, Ark. This is very interesting news when we learn that his salary is $300 a month.

The marriage of Mr. John Voss, '16, to Miss Schneider took place in the St. Mary's church, in Chicago, at noon on Tuesday, February 10th.

Also this month we have the marriage of Miss Dorothy J. Wheeler to Russell H. Thompson. After April 1st the couple will be at home in Sullivan, Ind. Miss Wheeler was a member of the class of 1917.

In the early part of January there was an engagement announced in Galesburg, which was of interest to Bradley people. The engagement of Miss Alice Beedle to Mr. Robt. D. McDougal was made at this time. Mr. McDougal was formerly a Bradley student.

The death of Mrs. J. S. Hopper occurred January 8, 1920. Mrs. Hopper was Marcia Haller, of the class of 1913.

THE TOURNAMENT.

The annual I. I. A. A. basketball tourney is here again, and politics, war and love will take a back seat until it is over. A great tournament is inevitable, for with calibre of teams running high and many teams on an equal standing there are bound to be several history making games.

The officials made the drawings March first and Bradley drew the best schedule that she has drawn in several years. In our first game we meet Eastern Normal, carded as a fair team but probably not equal to the local five. Our next game will be with either Wesleyan or Lombard and if we should win here we will place among the first four teams. To say that we will finish a forerunner, is allowing a great deal to the luck end of basket ball. If Bradley can have the breaks they can beat Lombard and Wesleyan both. So far luck has been against us in most of our games.

Milliken seems the inevitable winners of the championship this year, having beaten every team in the conference by a great margin.

Normal is running close to this crew, Normal having won from every team except Millikin. Although Wesleyan has had a poor season they have material for a great team if they get into running form. Augustana, playing on their own floor should come out near the top. In all the teams we find reason to believe they might win the championship.

But after all the dope is worked out many teams are picked to win and sometimes tournaments are even cut and dried, and shields are awarded by the dopsters before the tournament, and yet we often find that when the final whistle blows pulling down the curtain on the last game, a team riding the dark horse is bowing to the cheers of the onlookers.

So we'll just wait till that final whistle.

WESLEYAN TRIMS B. P. I.

In a rather tight but slow game and one with little scoring, Bradley came out on the small end of a 14-13 count.

As has been the case in several Bradley games our forwards could not get through the rim of the basket. Many times they would hit the basket but each time the ball would bound off to the side. The Wesleyan crew were not working in good form and the Bradley guards kept them safe. The first half ended 6-4 in our favor and the next half developed into an extremely exciting contest, the score see-sawed back and forth until each team had 13 points and then neither team could score. The whistle blew and the game went to five minutes overtime. For about two minutes neither team scored. Then Brown sent in Tucker, who in the excitement forgot to report to the score keeper which gives the other team a free throw. Wesleyan made the throw and the game was over 14-13.

Tucker simply had the hard luck of being the man to go in, probably any other man on the team would have done the same thing.

AUGUSTANA COMEBACK.

The Augustana crew came down after trimming Eureka and played the Bradley crew off their feet. It was quite a surprise to the Bradley quintet, for earlier in the season we beat them by a fair margin.

The Augie quintet are no doubt a good, clean team to play with and it is easy to see the truth of the stories we hear about the Augustana teams. They played a clean, sportsmanlike game all the time.

Clarno was out of this game on account of an operation on his nose. He is not expected to do much until the tournament. Rogers and McMahon played a good game. McMahon although an extremely small man to be playing on the team has surprised everyone by his fighting qualities. In every game he follows the ball better than any other man on the team.

LOMBARD WINS.

In a hard fought and very fast game between the locals and the Lombard five, Bradley was smuggled under the good defense put up by the Lombard five. Although the Lombard crew is not a good scoring team, they have a five-man defense that is hard to get around.

The game was fairly close, the first half ending 7-6 in Lombard's favor. The second half, both teams opened up with a big rush, scoring several baskets but near the end of the game Lombard put in two counters and before Bradley could score again the whistle blew with the score 17-14.

MILLIKIN TROUNCES B. P. I.

The big Blue five trounced the Bradleyites as they had trounced every one else. Everyone had hopes of our team upsetting the dope as they have done several other times in Bradley's basketball career. But the unguardable pair of Poscover and Gill scored at ease. The first five minutes of play Bradley had three shots at the basket to Millikin's one, but as luck has been so it remained and Bradley could not make them count and then the Blue five let loose and dropped them in at will from all angles of the floor. The first half ended 22-2.

When the next half started Bradley showed another spurt of pep instilled into them by Coach Brown. They held Millikin scoreless for awhile and ran their score up to 19 points and the Millikin crew began to worry enough to start an argument with the referee.

But this could not last long and soon the Millikin crew were out of possible reach and the game ended 36-19. The second half Bradley scored 17 points to Millikin's 14.

TWO VICTORIES AT EUREKA.

The first and second teams traveled to Eureka, followed by a band of about fifty rooters. We almost expected defeat because the team was having a losing streak and Eureka was playing fair basketball.

The second team, made up of Walters, Rynsberger, Tucker, Parkin and Burner, trimmed the second team at Eureka 20-10. Walters was the star of this game, making four field goals.

The main game was a fine contest, played very close and proved worthwhile to those who followed the team. The first half ended 14-14 and Bradley held the Eurekans scoreless the second half.

The team played first line basketball in this game and if they show this class in the tournament they will cop a place.

NORMAL REPEATS.

For the second time this year the fast Normal crew defeated the Red and White tossers, but this time by only a narrow margin.

The game developed into a rough affair as is usually the case with the Normalites in action. The game was anyone's until the last three minutes when Normal scored three baskets straight, but up until that time Bradley would be ahead and then Normal would step out.

The first game which we played with Normal was a one-sided affair, Normal winning 27-10.

This was Coach Brown's last game and every one hoped for a victory as the last game under his coaching. We all remember Mr. Brown as never showing his excitement over a contest but those who noticed him at the Normal game saw him on the edge of the bench rooting now and then.

LOMBARD WINS AGAIN.

Lombard repeated their victory of the first part of the season by trimming the Bradleyites, 30-20. The contest was witnessed by 1,200 people in the armory at Galesburg.

Sixteen fouls were committed by the Bradley team and ten by Lombard. Allen was withdrawn from the contest on account of fouls which weakened our defense and allowed Lombard to score more easily. The Lombard forward, Newberg made 12 out of a possible 16 free throws. It was a wild contest of basket shooting and foul throwing with Rogers and McMahan starring. Rogers made 6 out of a possible 8 free throws, while McMahan scored four field goals.

The Lombard crew has improved a great deal since the first game with Bradley and may be a surprise in the tourney.

The score:

GAGE CAPTAIN OF WISCONSIN FRESHMEN.

Les Gage, last year's forward and captain elect this year was recently elected captain of the Freshman varsity at Wisconsin. Les has been playing on the basketball team there and through his splendid work was unanimously chosen to be the captain for this year.

He played football and basketball here last year and was a star in both. He was chosen to be captain here in basket ball this year but decided to go to Wisconsin for the year. Gage played under the coaching of Olson, a former Wisconsin star last year and attributed much of his playing to Olson.

It is pleasing to see former Bradleyites making good in larger institutions and we feel that we do have some fine players even tho this month's Tech shows a continual string of defeats.

Irish—"But I can't."

J. B.—“The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.”

Mrs. J. B.—“Well, you just come in here and rule the world a while. I'm tired.”

Bradley students had been urged to keep all important topics as written memoranda, in order to prevent forgetting. Buchele's memo book was found to contain the following entries:

“No chapel today.”

“Cut the third hour class.”

“Leave school at four.”

Schmiddy—“When women kiss each other, it always reminds me of prize-fighters shaking hands.”

VACUUM.

Wittick—“You know sometimes I have a great deal on my mind. My head is just full of thoughts.”

Humber—“Why don't you wash your head once in a while?”

CLASS IN UPHOLSTERY?

Topic of discussion was the number of layers of leather obtained from a cow hide.

Shorty McMahon—“What layer do they get ‘buck skin’ from?”

Meyer—“Third layer from a ‘canary skin,’ Shorty.”

STYLE!

Won't someone please tell Don Velde how much we appreciate his:
Neat, trim, snug-fitting cuffless trousers,
His gorgeous sheep-lined coat and,
Most of all those wonderful invertible collars, not forgetting to mention
Those bee-utifull shoe string neckties.
And all because they are so new from New York.
He at least should get SOME mention for setting these popular styles.

POLLY BRADLEY'S COLUMN.

This little column continues its onward march in its endeavor to alleviate the mental and physical sufferings of all good Bradley students. No problem is too great or too small for us to tackle, altho we don't always guarantee a solution.

My Dear Miss Bradley:

Do you not consider the object of legislation to be the greatest good to the greatest number?

Respectfully yours,
W. WINGET.

Friend Polly:

How would you prevent autoists from exceeding the speed limit?

W. CAMPBELL.

:: :: ::

Well, Walter, we'd follow out some such plan as is enforced at Washburn, e. g., set the limit at, say, 75 miles per hour, and then few would be able to break it.

Sincerely,

POLLY B.

Miss P. Bradley:

Will you kindly explain the meaning of the term: "Nature always tries to equalize everything"?

JAWN CAREY.

:: :: ::

Dear Ed.-in-Chief:

Easily. Take as an example the human body. If one eye is lost, the sight of the other becomes stronger. Likewise, if one leg is shorter, the other is always longer.

Sincerely,

POLLY B.

Dear Miss Polly:

Can you tell me who Cleopatra was? Should I consider it a compliment to be told that I resemble her?

M. R.

:: :: ::

Dear Mildred:

Cleopatra was a queen who died that Theda Bara might live. The latter question exhibits a touch of conceit, and we decline to answer it.

Sincerely,

POLLY B.

Miss LeFevre—"What's all that noise in the corner?"

Walters tried to hock his Latin poney for a sandwich. But F. Ernest Burner said that he had three already and he couldn't use any more.

Reflections.

What we can't see is why doesn't Gaines eat his peas with his knife. It would be easier for the janitor and Gaines would get more for his money.

One bad thing about chapel just before dinner is that somebody is always taking hymn books to the lunch room. Rather dry to masticate.

ONE MINUTE INTERVIEWS.

In Answer to the Question:

What Can Be Done to Improve the Lunch Room?

Mary Ward says—"I don't see why they don't put a gum machine at the door. It sure would come in handy."

Peacock says—"Why not have a charge account installed. A good way to lengthen the pocket book and ever so much easier for me."

Atwood—"I advocate the installing of finger bowls. I miss them very much."

"Velde" says—"I am very much in favor of chicken dinners Wednesdays and Fridays. It won't be necessary for me to kill waste time in the halls."

Pettis says—"Use my milk and we will have it when we want it. My brand doesn't sour."

Tinthoff says—"Serve Grape Nuts and I'll be content without anything else."

Who lent Walters the lead quarter to pay for his lunch?

Who spilled the soup in Miller's chair? Did you know he sat in it?
